ProStor Systems Names Vice President of Channel Sales

Veteran Sales Executive Brings Talent and Track Record to New Position

BOULDER, CO – April 18, 2006 – ProStor Systems today announced that Bill Lewis has been named to the newly created position of vice president of channel sales, reporting directly to CEO and President Steve Georgis. Lewis brings more than 20 years of sales and management experience working for leading high-technology firms, including Brocade Communications, Silicon Graphics and IBM.

“Bill’s unique blend of sales and computer industry experience, combined with his management expertise, puts Bill in a class of his own,” said Steve Georgis. “He has an extensive track record of growing channel business exponentially from inception. We are fortunate to have his depth of industry intelligence as we sell our new RDX™ removable cartridge technology to OEMs, VARs and distributors.”

Before joining ProStor Systems, Lewis led the North American Sales team at Brocade Communications as director of channel sales. Prior to Brocade, he ran the North American Distribution Sales division at Silicon Graphics. He also has a successful sales track record at several early phase high-tech companies, where he was responsible for worldwide sales and distribution, including signing sales partners in Western Europe, Latin America and the Asia Pacific markets.
